Shipping Suggestions

PARCEL POST. The size limit for Parcel Post is 84 inches in combined girth and length. For this reason no tree over four feet high can be sent, unless cut back, even if it weighs only a pound or two.

PARCEL POST CHARGES HAVE TO BE PREPAID, and for this reason money will have to be sent to cover cost of postal charges.

EXPRESS. For all shipments up to 300 pounds the Express is the most satisfactory, and not any more costly than freight. Even in heavy shipments Express may cost more but the quicker service pays.

FREIGHT. For very large and heavy shipments, and where quick delivery is not an element. All our shipments are so packed that they will carry several weeks by freight without injury to stock.

EXPRESS AND FREIGHT SHIPMENTS can be sent "Charges Collect," and such charges are no more than if "Prepaid." For this reason no money has to be sent to cover Express or Freight charges.

ERRORS AND COMPLAINTS. We want every order to be satisfactorily filled, and the deal is not complete until satisfaction is given. So if there is any error or dissatisfaction we will appreciate it very much if you will let us know as soon after receipt of stock as possible or not later than five days to admit of adjustment. We immediately and cheerfully correct any errors of our own.

The Fiftieth Anniversary of the Locke Nursery and Floral Company

Fifty years of continuous service to the state of Texas were completed by the Locke Nursery and Floral Company in 1932. Formerly known as the Comal Springs Nursery, the business was founded by Otto Locke, Sr., in 1882, when he first budded a few pecan trees on his farm and sold them to his neighbors. True to the German tradition of beautiful horticulture, Mr. Locke found his first market in the German settlement of New Braunfels; but being of pioneer stock, he was soon pushing into the wilderness in many directions. He was one of the only four nurserymen then in business in the whole state of Texas; and his good, honest trees were carried by wagon and ox-cart to the new homesteads beyond the railroad lines, while his ornamental shrubs and vines soon followed to transform many a barren ranch house into a gracious home. His fame spread to Oklahoma and Arizona; south of the Rio Grande, orders came in from Monterrey, Saltillo, Victoria, and other cities, while some of his plants even went to the West Indies. His modest little catalogue, first issued in German in 1890, was supplanted by edition after edition, in English after 1894, and each one fuller than the last. In 1926 Mr. Locke retired from participation in the commercial side of nursery work, and the business was continued by his son, Hermann Locke. In 1929 this successful enterprise was rounded out by the addition of a greenhouse and cut flower department under the capable management of Mrs. Hermann Locke, while Mr. Henry O. Maier became the official landscape architect of the company.

The pioneer renown of the name of Locke, however, does not rest alone on the number of entries in the order book, impressive as these are, and an eloquent testimonial to the high quality of the Locke stock. Both father and son have been fully alive to the tremendous opportunities open to Texas nurserymen in the importation and development of new species that might be suited to Texas, and the domestication and improvement of wild plants native to this state. The Locke Nursery has done much experimental work for the United States Government, testing out, for example, the tallow tree, the tung oil tree, the jujube, and several varieties of mulberry, and being the first in the country to grow the Chinese elm, now so popular. It has domesticated the Senisa or Ash-plant, now indispensable as a contrast plant in foundation grouping, and it is one of the largest collectors and distributors of Blue Bonnet seeds in the state; while their excellent collection of Yuccas and Cacti marks the Lockes as true sons of the southwest. They have, however, gone beyond the routine scientific work of the nurseryman, and originated several new plants, all of which are of the greatest value to Texas because they are perfectly adapted to conditions in this state. The Bonita Arbor Vitae, which was created by Mr. Otto Locke, now appears in the leading nursery catalogues all over the country; the Lone Star Pecan touches a high peak in the production of giant soft-shelled pecans; the Dixie Peach and Peerless Peach are a delicious contribution to many a Texas home, as are the Honey Nectarine and the Summer Beauty Pear. This pear, together with a specimen of Locke's beautiful, silky pampas grass, took first prize at the great Louisiana Purchase Exposition in St. Louis in 1904. Among the many different varieties of roses grown by Mr. Locke, the Germania is entirely his own. The Locke experiments with tomatoes, a most important crop in Texas, have yielded three separate new varieties, all pink, firm, delicious, and ideally suited for marketing. The latest product of Mr. Locke's horticultural experiments is a curious new evergreen, the Retanosporum Texanum, which is soon to be introduced to the public.

A study of the Lockes' method of work reveals a striking similarity to that of Luther Burbank, and even to that of Thomas A. Edison. Neither of the Lockes are theoretical horticulturists, though both are well grounded in the fundamental laws of their science. They leave statistics to others. But living outdoors from year to year among their growing things, they have acquired a priceless intuition about the ways of plants; somewhere deep in their bones they have a feel for it which transcends all the book-knowledge of all the schools in the country, something which can be learned by the person born for it, but never taught to the unsympathetic. Their work is unmethodical by academic standards, and yet it is far from being haphazard; and each of their hybrids, each of their improved varieties, each of their new creations is the result of intelligent observation plus that nameless, important sixth sense which makes the born horticulturist. Howard Locke, son of Mr. Hermann Locke, and a graduate of A. & M. College, is now a member of the firm and specializes in landscape work.

It would be difficult to say which of the departments is the greatest pride of the Lockes, father and son. Their fruit trees, of which 113 sub-species appear in the catalogue, have been of fundamental importance in the agricultural development of the state. Their 12 kinds of grapes produce results to satisfy the choicest palate; their 115 hardy evergreens and flowering shrubs may be seen in the finer examples of landscape gardening all over the state, while their 60,000 roses of 190 different kinds, represent a remarkable achievement and spread their loveliness far and wide. The Locke Nursery is the greatest grower of caladiums and tuberose in the country, and ships bulbs of these plants to every state in the Union and to Mexico and Canada. Over 90 per cent. of the landscape work on public grounds and large estates in nearby cities is done by the Locke company, under the direction of Mr. Howard Locke and Mr. Maier, and Locke's is now known for the boldness of its imagination and its excellent taste in landscaping as well as for the superlative quality of its plants. On occasions formal and informal, Mrs. Locke's greenhouse and cut flower department fills orders with a fine sense of the appropriate. Having grown up with the state of Texas the Locke Nursery is an institution of which Texans may well be proud, and in celebrating its fiftieth anniversary it looks forward to many more years in close association with the hearts and the homes of the land.
